Construction. Triads (or any other tertian triads) are built by superimposing every other note of a diatonic scale (e.g., standard major or minor scale). For example, a C major triad uses the notes C–E–G. This spells a triad by skipping over D and F. While the interval from each note to the one above it is a third, the quality of those thirds varies depending on the quality of the triad:

But all Pythagorean triangles are even easier to draw on squared paper because all their sides are whole number lengths. Measure the lengths of the two smaller sides (those around the right-angle) as lengths along and up from the same point and then join the two end-points together. So Pythagorean triangles also tell us which pairs of points with whole-number coordinates are a whole-number ...
