Two Stroke Performance Tuning Back in Europe two-stroke engineers were battling excessive ring and cylinder wear, due to the exhaust port width being too great. A narrow port reduced power but improved reliability. A taller port restored lost power but made the power band unacceptably narrow.

parts of a two-stroke engine wear out a lot faster. Two-stroke oil is expensive, and you need about 4 ounces of it per gallon of gas. You would burn about a gallon of oil every 1,000 miles if you used a two-stroke engine in a car. â€¢ Two-stroke engines do not use fuel efficiently, so you would get fewer miles per gallon.

High performance 2 stroke engines are very inefficient at low RPM and therefore it is usually best not to set them to idle. You will find that the idle speed adjustment and the required low speed mixture setting will change drastically from a warmed up engine in the pits to a hot engine several laps into the race.
