Many breeds of sheep have their tails docked to reduce the buildup of faeces which can encourage fly strike. Also used for this purpose is mulesing. Docking also makes it easier to view a grown ewe's udders to detect potential problems. While tail docking is an effective preventive method in some cases, if it is not carried out correctly it may result in other problems such as ill thrift or ...

I have done the double dosing, fortnightly, with categorical success, on two of my horses, annually. I have also suggested it to a friend whose mare was exhibiting classic signs of NTW, and she had a remarkable turn around in a mare that had been written off by local vets, due to what appeared to be calcified lumps along her back.
