The Old Southwest Historic District embodies the developmental patterns of the Southwest quadrant of Washington and the city as a whole. The area contains the only intact examples of working-class dwellings that characterized Southwest Washington before the urban renewal program of the 1950s and 1960s.

Approach The dunes are visible from some distance across the flat valley floor. There are two approach roads; west from Mosca along country road 6N, or from the south along CO 150, both of which pass through a rather dull landscape of flat dusty farmland with scattered settlements. Past the entrance station, the first site is a visitor center, after which the main road leads to a campground ...
